WBKY Broadcasts Revised Martian Invasion

A radio program in 1938 which caused people to pray in the streets, and reportedly caused several heart attacks, will be broadcast by WBKY at 5:30 o'clock tonight with a Kentucky setting.

Orson Welle's 1938 version of "The War of the Worlds" had Martians invading New Jersey. Radio arts senior Fred Gooding has the invading Martians land in Switzer and march to and destroy Lexington.

Reportedly each time a program using Welle's basic idea of Martians landing on earth has been broadcast, the listening public has panicked.

In 1944 a Chile station had imaginary Martians destroying Santiago. As a result, some listeners panicked and others became hysterical.

Five years later an Ecuador station broadcasted a similar adaptation. Despite newspaper and radio announcements telling of the broadcast, riots occurred causing the death of six people and 10 others to be injured. In addition, one Ecuador radio station was burned.

Instructor in dramatics, Charles Dickens, portrays an astronomer being interviewed by an announcer, Stu Hallock, a professor in Radio Arts, when the first Martians land.

Two UK Radio Arts graduates, now with Lexington radio stations, Reynolds Large and Bob Maranville, take leading parts in the production.

Nick Clooney will participate in the production. UK Radio Arts students Wes Strader, Wayne Gregory, and Dave Blakeman will participate, also.

"It has taken several weeks to put the show on tape," Gooding said, "and has required two WBKY staff engineers for the special effects."

Dickey Seeking Study Of Trimester System will be asked to study a trimester trimester schedule. system for UK, President Frank G. Dickey said yesterday.

Dr. Dickey said the committee will be allowed as much time as needed to study the possibilities of such a system and then make recommendations.

His action sprang from a University Faculty committee's recommendation that the system be studied further. The committee has been investigating the trimester plan since March 7.

Dr. Morris Scherago, nead of the long. Department of Bacteriology and chairman of the Committee on versity of Pittsburgh, operates un-Schedules which made the study, der a trimester plan.

No Pleas To Apathy

Those who insist on harping on student apathy only have to search as far as preclassification to find an invincible defense for their argument.

figures released by the registrar this week revealed that 1,500 students had failed to preclassify-about one third of the student body eligible. These students will have to go through the registration line next year, will have a fine for being late, and no doubt will be deprived of classes they could have easily obtained in preclassification.

No matter how much the registrar is maligned for this situation, this figure represents a severe indictment on those students who did not take the time to get classes for next year and therefore gummed up the whole system.

We can't see any reason for preaching to these uncooperatives and beg them to please preclassify. We don't see why the University should do special favors for them because they didn't like the system. Why try to plead to apathy?

No, we expect the administration to adopt a preclassification system that will not give them any opportunity to shun their duty and eliminate their chance to wait next fall.

The old registration system was a virtual vertigo, but it at least was not operated so that students could relax lackadaisically and wait until the last possible moment to rush and get classes. The University was assured that practically all its students would be registered during that period.

With these students in mind, perhaps the professor was not too far from exaggeration when he said:

"This would be a damn nice University if it weren't for the students."

LKD Is Noble

To The Editor:

On May 18, you had an editorial in your paper entitled "Paying To Play" which lambasted the LKD for charging admission to participants of the weekend. I realize that these participants of the weekend worked; however, in the face of paying patron's criticisms, I would like to give a look at the other side of the story.

Imagine yourself in the position of truly wanting an education but simply not being able to afford one. How would you like to have half of your graduation requirements, but be unable ot finish school because you lacked the funds? I know what this feeling is, and it isn't an enviable one. If it weren't for a scholarship-although mine isn't a LKD scholarship —I wouldn't be in school. It seems a shame that college students will fuss over paying for a big weekend-all of which they may attend for $4.50 stag or $9 drag-when the proceeds of that weekend will probably make it possible for someone else to attend college, too. That $9 would probably last only for one night of extensive bar hopping-that is, fellow, if your date couldn't drink you under the table.

Now let us glance a little further along the scene. Why even the LKD members had to pay to get in! Strange, no complaints from that section. Maybe it's because they have worked hard all year long, giving of their money and their social, study, sleeping, and working time. Maybe if that bicycle rider who didn't start practicing until Saturday morning-yes, before the derby-wouldn't mind paying if he had worked just a little longer. Like eight months longer! That photographer, too! (By the way, he got in free because he refused to take pictures otherwise-I saw you! Naughty, naughty!) Oh yes, you're right. That bicycle rider had to work during the derby-he rode a full two laps of his race. Well, many LKD members paid to get into more than just the bicycle race, yet worked through the whole program!

Maybe we will see the LKD weekend crumble-big weekends have become just as much of our history as our old traditions. (And let's see the faculty blamed for this one.) If we let this happen, however, we are fools. The expense of the weekend isn't high, the fun is well worth the money, and the cause behind the whole thing is not only charitable, it's noble.

For you who complain over that lost dollar or so that could be spent for booze which would finance some man's new sports car, remember that you could spend it on a weekend of fun that would put it in the hands of a needy potential college graduate.

"Of a long, difficult trek across Missouri into an unfamiliar country a thousand miles away from their native mountains, where they were destined to be further plundered and pauperized."

This is just the beginning. In the book Mr. Embry explains the situations of several of the Indian tribes. He tells of the way the Indians lived when the white people came to America; the way they were forced on the reservations and the way they live today.

He goes into great detail about the "wealth" of the Indians and uses startling facts to back up his points.

What kind of housing do they have? What educational opportunities are they offered? And what can they do with the education they do get?

These are a few of the other phases of Indian life Mr. Embry delves into, and the answers to these questions certainly justify the title of his book.

In the last chapter, Forced Communism of Freedom?, the author gives a suggested solution to the problem. He says,

"A Congressional committee should be set up immediately and directed to work out the details of legislation that would effect the closing of the Bureau of Indian Affairs in an orderly and conscientious manner, transferring the In-

TILL WE MEET AGAIN

Today I conclude my sixth year of writing columns for the makers of Marlboro and Philip Morris cigarettes. It has been my custom during these six years to make no attempt to be funny in this final column. (I have achieved this objective many times during the year also, but never on purpose.) The reasons for the lack of levity in this final column are two: first, you are preparing for final exams and, short of holding you down and tickling you, there is no way in the world to make you laugh at this time; and, second, for many of us this is a leavetaking, and leave-takings, I think, ought not be flippant.

If I have brought you a moment or two of cheer during the past year, I am rewarded. If I have persuaded you to try Marlboro or Philip Morris cigarettes, you are rewarded.

Let me pause here to express my heartfelt gratitude to the makers of Marlboro and Philip Morris. They have given me complete freedom in the writing of these columns. There has not been the slightest hint of censorship. They have never changed so much as one comma in my copy. I wish to take this occasion to state publicly that I am forever grateful to these enlightened tobacconists and I hereby serve notice that if they find it in their corporate heart to engage me for another year of columning, I shall require a substantial increase in salary.

The money is not what matters-not as money, that is, but only as a token. I want to be assured that they love me as much as I love Marlboro and Philip Morris. And what, indeed, is not to love? Marlboro is a cigarette which proves beyond cavil that flavor did not go out when filters came in. Philip Morris is a cigarette that is pure mildness from lip-end to tipend. Both of these estimable smokes come in soft-pack or flip-top box. Neither is ever sold in bulk.

The summer lies ahead. For underclassmen summer will be a hiatus, a breather in which to restore yourselves for next year's resumption of busy college life. For seniors there will be no more college. You must not, however, despair and abandon yourself to idleness. There are other things to do in the world besides going to school-basket weaving, for example, or building boats in bottles, or picking up tinfoil, or reading "War and Peace." Many graduates fall into the erroneous belief that their lives are over when they leave college. This is not so. It is possible to make some sort of life for yourself with a bit of ingenuity . . . or, if that fails, dye your hair, change your name, and enroll at some other college.

Whatever the future holds for you, be assured that the makers of Marlboro and Philip Morris join me in wishing you the best of everything. We have taken great pleasure—the makers and I-in bringing you this column each week throughout the school year. We hope a little pleasure has accrued to you too.

May good fortune attend your ventures. Stay happy. Stay healthy. Stay loose.

We, the makers of Marlboro and Philip Morris, can only echo kindly old Max's parting words. Stay happy. Stay healthy. Stay loose.

It looks like Don Demeter will be seeing a lot of National League action this season. Baseball may not be a religion with him but he realizes now a person can be a good ballplayer and a good man, tanburg, S. C., saw enough of Howard to talk of him being another Babe Ruth.

ADOLPH RUPP

"Laughter is the best medicine," someone once wrote. The author could have had in mind this year's UK teams accumulating the most points in Kappa Alpha, won it previously in All-America three times; Paul that were disappointing.

While these teams were struggling to disappointing seasons, players and coaches managed to keep the fans pacified with a few facetious incidents.

ance was by the basketball team Carey. and the funniest remarks came court on a post-game radio show the Medical Center. called "Rupp Reviews," the Baron's realistic appraisal of the game was often funny and made the fans forget the mediocre play.

Witness his performance after Kentucky had dropped a crucial game: "These boys didn't want to play ball tonight, all they were thinking about were the steaks they were going to eat after the game."

Or his comments to State Senator George Conley, also a referee, "Conley, you can appropriate thousands of dellars for building roads, but you can't even call traveling."

Rupp assistant, Harry Lancaster, also got into the act. When a doctor told Lancaster that Rupp might have a heart attack if the Baron didn't quiet down on the bench, Lancaster said, "He wouldn't dare and leave me with this team."

The performance of the track team was not sub-par, but George Smith wasn't too happy with his running in the Boston Marathon.

In this race dominated by Finnish runners, Smith finished something like 69th. When someone asked him where he finished, Smith said, "I don't know exactly where I did finish, but those Finnish runners were on the boat back to Finland by the time I hit the tape."

Football was not disappointing because everyone expected the team to beat only Miami, Xavier, and Tennessee. Therefore no humor here, unless you consider running three plays over guard and punting as such.

The tennis, golf and swim teams did better than expected and needed no soothing laughter.

Wait 'till next year, there will be more wins and less laughter.

Where was Dick Parsons when, the All-SEC baseball team was named? He was named to the team last year as a sophomore when he batted .345. This year, he batted .370 and was snubbed by the Atlanta Journal-Constitution poll.

It's hard to see how the Harlan junior could be left off the team. Parsons did have trouble fielding the shortstop position this year, but persons voting in the poll base their selections primarily on batting averages.

Also, why were Charlie Loyd and Allen Feldhaus left off? It seems that polls are getting worse every day.

College classes and similar groups usually have reunions at five-year intervals. In baseball, there are two groups that have 22 reunions a year.

These two groups are the New York Yankees and the Kansas City Athletics. The teams get together for a game called baseball with the best performers for the Athletics going to the Yankees and the worst performers for the Yankees
